REiLA Journal of Research and Innovation in Language founded by The Institute of Research and Community Service (LPPM) Unilak as a triannual publication journal for all those involved in research and innovations in language whether as a first, second, additional, or foreign language, or as an international Lingua Franca. As a Director of LPPM Universitas Lancang Kuning (LPPM-Unilak), I realize that we need to create and maintain the academic environment for our own sake. Through this journal, the University hopes to explore opportunities to identify such flexibility in recent and upcoming research and innovation environments. As well as I believe REiLA Journal will provide fruitful ideas and valuable contributions to the academic environment in Unilak as well as for the global.

Finally, I wish to thank and acknowledge all members of the committee for their commitment and smart work to start the journal. A Foreword from the Editor-in-Chief

April 2019, Pekanbaru. Indonesia

Welcome to the inaugural issue of REiLA : Journal of Research and Innovation in Language. Using the journal inauguration as an occasion, I would like to thank many people who created the opportunity for the journal to be born and who made it happen. The list includes all current Editorial Board members, reviewers, members of LITA, as well as the contributing authors for creating Volume 1 No. 1 of REiLA : Journal of Research and Innovation in Language. In particular, my greatest thanks are due to the director of LPPM-Unilak Ibu Latifa Siswati MP, as well as Mr. Alexander Yandra and Ms. Mutia S. Nursafira these three kind hearted persons are the inspirational of the journal to share the knowledge to the academia.

The current issue of this journal includes six papers written by authors from different topics and affiliations, namely; Susy Deliani et.al., exploring the Terminology-Based Indonesian Language Teaching Materials Development. Asmida Posmauli Marpaung a teacher from Pekanbaru, Indonesia, wrote the second paper with new insight into Developing Students' Reading Comprehension Using STAD Strategy seeing from a perspective of experimental design. The third paper is from Nurul Fathia Salma, which deeply discussed Aims and Approaches of Critical Discourse Analysis (CDA). Another exciting paper on Critical Discourse Analysis (CDA) are wrote by Zhan Li Xia and Hamuddin that reveals CDA from the perspectives of Chinese scholars from time to time. Then the fifth paper from Rika Armayanti brought a very nice review on Critical Discourse Analysis (CDA) on Qualitative Research perspective brought to be discusses comprehensively. The last paper, Indri C. Sihombing (Universitas Lancang Kuning, Pekanbaru. Indonesia), discusses the Theoretical Perspectives of Discursive Phenomena: DA and Ethnomethodologically DA. These six papers from this current issue brings new insight and spirit of sharing knowledge based research to the academia. These papers determine the face of the journal and set the stage for subsequent issues that will publish mostly research papers: experimental, computational and theoretical. At the same time, research papers included here exemplify the kinds of papers that the journal will favor.
